MAY ENTER
NEW FIELD
OF ACTIVITYMINORITY DELEGATES SEEK TO BRING ISSUES BEFORE CON-
VENTIONCOMMANDER QUINN TO TOUCH
ON SUBJECT IN ANNUAL REPORT(By United Press)
St. Paul, Sept. 15.—The American Legion is going into politics.A number of minority delegations were today planning to bring issues
before the sixth annual national convention which force action of some kind on the most important issues of the presidential campaign.The Legion will never get so far astray from its present purposes,
however, as to endorse a candidate
for any office nor lend its strength
to support of any candidate or group of candidates, leaders insisted.Heretofore the Legion has acted only upon those national issues or international policies which had a direct bearing on the service man,
his family, or the public welfare.Now there are many who urged that the scope of the Legion's activities be broadened.Some of the Massachusetts delegation minority hope that perhaps next year, if not this, the Legion may decide to take a definite stand politically. By means of resolutions they hope to bring up the question this year.Commander John R. Quinn himself, it was pointed out today, is casting about for new fields of activity for the Legion. In his annual report he will depart from rehabilitation, hospitalization and adjusted compensation and child welfare for the first time—to urge a national conservation policy. He will insist that the natural resources of the country be protected from exploitation for private gain.This phase of his address, viewed politically, and following as it does the oil scandals of the past year, had some significance in connection with the present campaign.Taking the stand that public properties can at least be free, many leaders are preparing for a few sessions
that will be full of political dynamite.
Leaders are worrying a bit about what may develop because they realize that many Legionnaires are intensely interested in politics as well as the Legion.But most of the "buddies" here
for the opening of the big convence
are worrying about nothing but ways and means of getting ahead of the other delegations in the noise-producing contest.So far Iowa and Texas lead the race. Rival delegations kept an interested throng of spectators on the streets until the wee hours of the morning waiting for some new spectacle of enthusiasm.Two broad, smothered Texans led the parade, riding an eccentric flivver that galloped like a merry-go-round horse. The wheels were short on one side of the machine and long
on the other, and the machine road
like a top ship in two or three angry seas. Behind plodded the old gray mare who isn't what she used to be.
But the Texas beauty who rode her got plenty of attention. Broad-shouldered Texans in red flannel shirts and spacious sombreros formed a bodyguard.Iowa, 10,000 strong, all wore caps resembling an ear of corn. They made great gains in the noise contest
last night but declared they haven't started. They will have a private parade of their own tonight.DETAILS OF LEGION
MEET OPENINGAuditorium, St. Paul, Sept. 15.—
Opening the sixth annual convention
of the American Legion, Commander
John R. Quinn today called the Legion to new fields of service.Foremost among the purposes urged by Commander Quinn for next year was a strong policy of conservation of natural resources."Our immense natural resources
should not be wasted, but should be kept intact for the benefit of the people of this nation who alone own
them," Commander Quinn urged. "I

DAWES TO REVIEW
LEGION PARADE IN
ST. PAUL, TUESDAY(By United Press)
Chicago, Sept. 15.—Charles G.
Dawes, Republican vice presidential candidate, will leave here today for St. Paul to review the American Legion parade tomorrow.believe the American Legion should stand manfully in opposition to any force or policy which would tend to partition of the public domain, and exploit it for private gain."Our forests, our waterways, our rivers, our fast decreasing aboriginal animals—all these should receive our protection as part of our desire to better our nation."Commander Quinn's report followed greetings from Mayor Arthur E.
Nelson of St. Paul, and Edwin L.
Lindell, commander, Department of Minnesota to the sixth national convention of the Legion—born 5 years ago in Minneapolis across the river.Buddies of the Legion from every state in the union were seated when the convention was called to order shortly after 9:30 this morning."The people of St. Paul know the American Legion," was the greeting
of Mayor Nelson. "They are familiar with its high ideals—with its purposes and with its accomplishments.""The people of St. Paul recognize the fact that the American Legion is the most potent organization in America today. The possibilities of its influence and action are limited only by its own efforts and desires.""This nation needs the American Legion to carry on its battle for Americanism among our people, for the building of that kind of citizenship,
without which free government cannot long endure.""Unfortunately this nation needs
the American Legion to remind it of the debt due particularly to our disabled comrades for whom the war is not yet ended. To such a body of men I have the honor of offering the hospitality of St. Paul. We have no keys to the gates of St. Paul. They are always open to you, and we want you to visit us frequently.""I salute you in the name of 27-000 Legionnaires of Minnesota," said State Commander Edwin L. Lindell. In their behalf, and in behalf of the citizens of Minnesota, I extend to you the hand of hospitality and friendship.""Minnesota can think of no finer honor than having with us the representatives of the most independent and influential organization on this earth."Committee reports and permanent organization followed the round of greetings. Then came the report of Commander Quinn."Today the Legion has answered
the doubts, fears, hopes and suspicions of the nation," Quinn asserted.
"It has passed the nonage and begins
a career which past accomplishments indicate will be replete with great deeds. We now find the Legion a proven quantity. Where there was doubt, now reposes confidence. Where there was hope, there is now assurance. Instead of fear, the Legion has inspired infinite trust. We are respected for our ideals, admired for our stamina, loved for our unselfish service."He related the triumph of the Legion in the passage in the last hours
of congress of the so-called Reed-Johnson bill."Sweeping in its reforms, generous in its provisions, just in its interpretation, it is, in my opinion, the greatest reform legislation for the
disabled since the creation of the veterans' bureau," he said.Enactment into law of the adjusted compensation bill, he said, "took on added importance in the public eye because of the enemies it made."
"The opposition," Quinn charged,
"wished utterly to destroy the Legion. They failed. Instead of crushing our organization our enemies proved our inherent strength.""You gave a magnificent example of the true legion spirit of loyalty
when I called on you for aid," he stated."The Americanism policies as dic-

BACKS CHICAGO ATTORNEY
FOR GRANT(By United Press)
Chicago, Sept. 15.—With a rising
public opinion behind him, Attorney Thomas E. Swanson today prepared the petition for a pardon for Bernard Grant, 19 and poor, who has been sentenced to hang for the murder of a Chicago patrolman.Scores of persons from all walks of life have enlisted in the fight to have Grant's sentence of death set aside
by Governor Small to conform with the mercy shown Nathan Leopold
and Richard Loeb, sons of millionaires, who confessed to the murder of Bobby Franks, Swanson announced.Efforts are being made to enlist
the aid of Samuel Ettelson, former corporation counsel for Chicago, who acted as personal attorney for Jacob Franks and helped prosecute the slayers of Bobby Franks.Ettelson is expected to take a hand in the case.Swanson will have Grant sign the petition for a pardon some time today and will mail the papers to Governor Small this evening. Small told the United Press today that the petition would be placed before the board of pardons. Swanson is asking for a pardon on the ground that the testimony connecting him with the murder of Patrolman Souders was so flimsy as to be ridiculous. If a pardon is refused Swanson said he would ask for commutation of the sentence.LOSSES CAUSED
BY SIGNED PAPER(By United Press)
New York, Sept. 15.—With 95 per cent of the business of the United States being transacted by means of instruments made valuable by the signature of individuals or firms, losses from embezzlements and forgeries have reached the total of $200,000,000 annually, says the American Institute of Accountants. Approximately six billion checks are used annually in the United States,
the institute states, in a report just issued following an extensive survey of business crime conditions."The opportunity for forgery, as far as the number of instruments is concerned, is practically unlimited,"
says the report in commenting on this phase of business fraud. "A large measure of protection can be secured against the alteration of checks and bills by giving attention to the style and form of the instruments."About $1,500,000,000 is the total annual amount of business frauds,
including losses from embezzlements
and forgeries. Credit frauds represent a loss of $400,000,000 annually to American business, the institute
finds, while losses from stock frauds
take a toll of $1,000,000,000 each year.TWO LOSE LIVES

to have completed their work of destruction after taking at least two lives and doing approximately $3,000,000 damage.Only two of the crude oil tanks
continued to smolder today,

sheriff, went to Gary, Ind., to bring back a man, but when he arrived
the man no longer was wanted.Munson then hunted up another man wanted in Minneapolis and brought him back instead. He was sent for George Burwell, formerly of Minneapolis, who had disobeyed a court order by failing to send his wife $20 a month. The matter was straightened out by the time Munson
arrived in Gary.While there he met Robert Heese,

INGTwo men, both residents of Minneapolis, are believed to have drowned
in Mille Lacs on Saturday night, and searching parties from Brainerd and Mille Lacs are making every effort to locate the bodies.The younger man is D. O. Sundgren, 123 West 26th street, Minneapolis. The elderly man's name is Andrew Johnson, 1118 1/2 Seventh Street South, Minneapolis. It is said that he was about forty years of age.
Sundgren is about 25 years old, is married and has a baby fifteen months old.According to residents of Mille Lacs and Dr. A. K. Cohen, who was in a fishing party on the lake Sunday, Sundgren and his partner drove up from Minneapolis on Saturday morning, stopping at the Johnson
boat livery on the creek south of St.
Albans resort.About 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the two chartered one of Mr. Johnson's best row boats, and started on a fishing trip. They took their lunch with them, and told the proprietor of the boat livery that they expected to spend the night
fishing on the lake.Charles Barnard, proprietor of St.
Albans, noticed a white object, which he knew to be a row boat, about a mile and a half out on the lake, and saw a black object on top of it. This was at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A short time later he noticed that the black object had disappeared.On Sunday morning when the men
failed to return from their fishing trip, Mr. Johnson became alarmed and formed a searching party. The boat was found out in the lake where Mr. Barnard had seen it. It was capsized and held by its anchor in about thirty feet of water.The men came to Mille Lacs in a Ford, bearing license No. 1055-A.
Authorities looked up this number
in the office of the secretary of state,
but the car was purchased second-hand recently and had not as yet
been transferred to its present owner, Andrew Johnson.Mrs. Sundgren was notified of the tragedy Sunday morning and came immediately to the lake. She found her husband's cap, it is reported, tossed up on the west shore of the lake. Mrs. Sundgren returned to Minneapolis Sunday evening, since she had left her baby at home and feared for its welfare.On Monday morning Sheriff Fred J. Reid took grappling hooks and other apparatus from the city to the scene of the accident. On his return at noon, Mr. Reid reported that one of the oars belonging to the boat had been found a quarter of a mile from where the boat was anchored, also
a heavy mackinaw, an ordinary coat,
and a belt, floating west of the scene
of the accident, near the west shore of the lake. The oar bore the number 10, corresponding with the boat number.The rowboat, according to the sheriff, was 16 feet long, very wide,
and extremely hard to tip, two men
being able to hang to one side of it very easily without it taking in water.
People are at a loss to determine the cause of the accident, since the lake was calm, and the boat very stable.Mr. Johnson resided at 1118 1/2
Seventh Street South, Minneapolis.
He is said to have been an old experienced fisherman. In the pocket of his coat which drifted ashore was found an automobile key which fits the Ford touring car in which the two men drove to Mille Lacs. In the car was mail, carrying Sundgren's
name and address in Minneapolis.

Johnson, it is reported, had taken

TELLS OF THINGS
IT HAS ACHIEVED(By United Press)
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 15.—Calling on the American Legion to launch on roads of service heretofore untravelled, John R. Quinn, retiring national commander, today gave the convention of the veterans' organization an accounting of his stewardship as its leader during the past twelve months."A half decade ago the Legion was but an ideal," Quinn said. "It inspired great hopes in some, trust in others, and was the object of fear in a few. Today it has passed its non-age and begun a career which past accomplishments indicate will be replete with great deeds.""During the year in which I have been your leader, two major triumphs have been won by the Legion, triumphs which have proved its great influence for good and crystallized it into a tremendous force working for the betterment of our country."

A Great Achievement

"The greatest triumph was the passage of the Reed-Johnson bill, the greatest reform legislation for the
disabled since the creation of the Veterans' Bureau.""The other outstanding achievement for 1924 was the enactment of the adjusted compensation law. The opponents of this bill, using it as an open means of attack on the Legion wished utterly to destroy the organization. Instead of crushing our organization our enemies proved our inherent strength.""To the best of our ability we have endeavored to carry out the mandates given us by the San Francisco convention a year ago."College Girl Held

Dr. Alexander C. Weiner, 62, staff physician at the West Shore hospital.Miss O'Reilly said she wanted to avenge the death of her mother, who was treated by Dr. Weiner.Dr. Weiner was seated in his office when the girl walked in, pointed a revolver at him and pulled the trigger twice. The weapon failed to go off and the girl fled, but was captured by Dr. Weiner after a short chase."I meant to torture him," Miss O'Reilly told police.In her bag was found an assortment of poisons which she said she had planned to use on the doctor. Dr.
Weiner explained that he treated the girl's mother for an incurable disease
and that she died about three years ago.Miss O'Reilly is librarian at a public library branch here.The girl is a brilliant student and has distinguished herself in Latin and Greek, her father, Atty. George B. O'Reilly, said."Rosalee has been brooding ever since her mother died," he explained.
"Her mind may be affected."Sundgren along, as the latter was a

use of a strong pair of field glasses,
with which to watch for clothing or

CANDIDATE SNIFFS THE
REDOLENT ODORBEEF ROASTED OVER NIGHT IN MISSOURI GREAT
PITS(By United Press)
Eastwood Farms, Bunceton, Mo.,
Sept. 15.—Hunger pangs seized John
W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate today as he sniffed the redolent odor that filled the air about the farmhouse of Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, democratic nominee for governor. The smell that made Davis think of dinner time was of savory
barbecued beef—tons of it sizzling
in three great pits in the grove where Missouri democracy was to gather to hear the party's standard-bearer
start his state campaign with a bang."I will be ready whenever the bell rings," said Davis when told by Geo.
A. Weyland, master of the feast, that the beef had been roasting in the great pits most of the night and would soon be "fit for a king."Long before the special train bearing Davis arrived roads leading to the Nelson farm, six miles from the railroad, were jammed with vehicles
and estimates of a 40,000 crowd apparently were not exaggerated.Even airplanes were used by some of the visitors to reach the little
central Missouri town.DAVIS MAKES AN OLD-FASHIONED SPEECHEastwood Farms, Bunceton, Mo., Sept. 15.—In the picturesque setting of an old-fashioned barbecue, John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, today made an old-fashioned speech to Missouri democracy.Davis first stirred the enthusiasm of the monster audience of 40,000, gathered from all parts of central Missouri, a democratic stronghold,
by calling the roll of local statesmen of bygone days—Benton, Vest, Cockrell, Stone and Champ Clark.It was a new method of campaigning by Davis and the effect upon the crowd was magical. The mere mention of revered bygone names brought storms of applause from the crowd
and ribald yells from bent, whiskered men who smoked corn-cob pipes and noddled approval as the candidate
spoke.In a glowing tribute to Champ Clark, Davis threw in a personal touch by referring to the kindness of the late speaker to him when a young member of the House."The democracy of the nation is poorer for the passing, but richer for the life of Champ Clark," he said.Then, taking inspiration from the crowd, Davis flayed the republican party, calling it the party of "special privilege." He referred to the scandals of the administration and pledged himself to give the people honest government if elected.Davis made an appeal to the women of the country to support the democratic ticket by declaring that the party ideal "is a fair and equal partnership, with all the men and women of the nation working side by side for the common welfare of themselves and their posterity.""There is and can be no diversity
nor conflict in their interests," he said, "and then a nation needs, now
and always, the stimulation of joint
endeavor."BRITISH TROOPS

AMERICAN LEGION IS GOING INTO POLITICS

MAY ENTER NEW FIELD OF ACTIVITY

MINORITY DELEGATES SEEK TO BRING ISSUES BEFORE CON-VENTION

COMMANDER QUINN TO TOUCH
ON SUBJECT IN ANNUAL REPORT

(By United Press)
St. Paul, Sept. 15.—The American Legion is going into politics.

A number of minority delegations were today planning to bring issues before the sixth annual national convention which force action of some kind on the most important issues of the presidential campaign.

The Legion will never get so far astray from its present purposes, however, as to endorse a candidate for any office nor lend its strength to support of any candidate or group of candidates, leaders insisted.

Heretofore the Legion has acted only upon those national issues or international policies which had a direct bearing on the service man, his family, or the public welfare.

Now there are many who urged that the scope of the Legion's activities be broadened.

Some of the Massachusetts delegation minority hope that perhaps next year, if not this, the Legion may decide to take a definite stand politically. By means of resolutions they hope to bring up the question this year.

Commander John R. Quinn himself, it was pointed out today, is casting about for new fields of activity for the Legion. In his annual report he will depart from rehabilitation, hospitalization and adjusted compensation and child welfare for the first time—to urge a national conservation policy. He will insist that the natural resources of the country be protected from exploitation for private gain.

This phase of his address, viewed politically, and following as it does the oil scandals of the past year, had some significance in connection with the present campaign.

Taking the stand that public properties can at least be free, many leaders are preparing for a few sessions that will be full of political dynamite. Leaders are worrying a bit about what may develop because they realize that many Legionnaires are intensely interested in politics as well as the Legion.

But most of the "buddies" here for the opening of the big conclave are worrying about nothing but ways and means of getting ahead of the other delegations in the noise-producing contest.

So far Iowa and Texas lead the race. Rival delegations kept an interested throng of spectators on the streets until the wee hours of the morning waiting for some new spectacle of enthusiasm.

Two broad, sombreroed Texans led the parade, riding an eccentric flivver that galloped like a merry-go-round horse. The wheels were short on one side of the machine and long on the other, and the machine road like a top ship in two or three angry seas. Behind plodded the old gray mare who isn't what she used to be. But the Texas beauty who rode her got plenty of attention. Broad-shouldered Texans in red flannel shirts and spacious sombreros formed a bodyguard.

Iowa, 10,000 strong, all wore caps resembling an ear of corn. They made great gains in the noise contest last night but declared they haven't started. They will have a private parade of their own tonight.

DETAILS OF LEGION MEET OPENING

Auditorium, St. Paul, Sept. 15.—Opening the sixth annual convention of the American Legion, Commander John R. Quinn today called the Legion to new fields of service.

Foremost among the purposes urged by Commander Quinn for next year was a strong policy of conservation of natural resources.

"Our immense natural resources should not be wasted, but should be kept intact for the benefit of the people of this nation who alone own them," Commander Quinn urged. "I believe the American Legion should stand manfully in opposition to any force or policy which would tend to partition of the public domain, and exploit it for private gain.

"Our forests, our waterways, our rivers, our fast decreasing aboriginal animals—all these should receive our protection as part of our desire to better our nation."

Commander Quinn's report followed greetings from Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul, and Edwin L. Lindell, commander, Department of Minnesota to the sixth annual convention of the Legion—born 5 years ago in Minneapolis across the river. Buddies of the Legion from every state in the union were seated when the convention was called to order shortly after 9:30 this morning.

"The people of St. Paul know the American Legion," was the greeting of Mayor Nelson. "They are familiar with its high ideals—with its purposes and with its accomplishments."

"The people of St. Paul recognize the fact that the American Legion is the most potent organization in America today. The possibilities of its influence and action are limited only by its own efforts and desires."

"This nation needs the American Legion to carry on its battle for Americanism among our people, for the building of that kind of citizenship, without which free government cannot long endure."

"Unfortunately this nation needs the American Legion to remind it of the debt due particularly to our disabled comrades for whom the war is not yet ended. To such a body of men I have the honor of offering the hospitality of St. Paul. We have no keys to the gates of St. Paul. They are always open to you, and we want you to visit us frequently."

"I salute you in the name of 27,000 Legionnaires of Minnesota," said State Commander Edwin L. Lindell. In their behalf, and in behalf of the citizens of Minnesota, I extend to you the hand of hospitality and friendship.

"Minnesota can think of no finer honor than having with us the representatives of the most independent and influential organization on this earth."

Committee reports and permanent organization followed the round of greetings. Then came the report of Commander Quinn.

"Today the Legion has answered the doubts, fears, hopes and suspicions of the nation," Quinn asserted. "It has passed the nonage and begins a career which past accomplishments indicate will be replete with great deeds. We now find the Legion a proven quantity. Where there was doubt, now reposes confidence. Where there was hope, there is now assurance. Instead of fear, the Legion has inspired infinite trust. We are respected for our ideals, admired for our stamina, loved for our unselfish service."

He related the triumph of the Legion in the passage in the last hours of congress of the so-called Reed-Johnson bill.

"Sweeping in its reforms, generous in its provisions, just in its interpretation, it is, in my opinion, the greatest reform legislation for the disabled since the creation of the veterans' bureau," he said.

Enactment into law of the adjusted compensation bill, he said, "took on added importance in the public eye because of the enemies it made."

"The opposition," Quinn charged, "wished utterly to destroy the Legion. They failed. Instead of crushing our organization our enemies proved our inherent strength."

"You gave a magnificent example of the true legion spirit of loyalty when I called on you for aid," he stated.

RISING TIDE OF PUBLIC OPINION
BACKS CHICAGO ATTORNEY
FOR GRANT

(By United Press)
Chicago, Sept. 15.—With a rising public opinion behind him, Attorney Thomas E. Swanson today prepared the petition for a pardon for Bernard Grant, 19 and poor, who has been sentenced to hang for the murder of a Chicago patrolman.

Scores of persons from all walks of life have enlisted in the fight to have Grant's sentence of death set aside by Governor Small to conform with the mercy shown Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, sons of millionaires, who confessed to the murder of Bobby Franks, Swanson announced.

Efforts are being made to enlist the aid of Samuel Ettelson, former corporation counsel for Chicago, who acted as personal attorney for Jacob Franks and helped prosecute the slayers of Bobby Franks.

Ettelson is expected to take a hand in the case.

Swanson will have Grant sign the petition for a pardon some time today and will mail the papers to Governor Small this evening. Small told the United Press today that the petition would be placed before the board of pardons. Swanson is asking for a pardon on the ground that the testimony connecting him with the murder of Patrolman Souders was so flimsy as to be ridiculous. If a pardon is refused Swanson said he would ask for commutation of the sentence.

LOSSES CAUSED BY SIGNED PAPER

(By United Press)
New York, Sept. 15.—With 95 per cent of the business of the United States being transacted by means of instruments made valuable by the signature of individuals or firms, losses from embezzlements and forgeries have reached the total of $200,000,000 annually, says the American Institute of Accountants. Approximately six billion checks are used annually in the United States, the institute states, in a report just issued following an extensive survey of business crime conditions.

"The opportunity for forgery, as far as the number of instruments is concerned, is practically unlimited," says the report in commenting on this phase of business fraud. "A large measure of protection can be secured against the alteration of checks and bills by giving attention to the style and form of the instruments."

About $1,600,000,000 is the total annual amount of business frauds, including losses from embezzlements and forgeries. Credit frauds represent a loss of $400,000,000 annually to American business, the institute finds, while losses from stock frauds take a toll of $1,000,000,000 each year.

TWO MINNEAPOLIS MEN LOSE LIVES IN MILLE LACS LAKE

D. O. SUNDGREN, AGE 25, AND
ANDREW JOHNSON, AGE 40, VICTIMS

COATS, CAP AND OAR FLOAT TO
WEST SHORE THIS MORN-ING

Two men, both residents of Minneapolis, are believed to have drowned in Mille Lacs on Saturday night, and searching parties from Brainerd and Mille Lacs are making every effort to locate the bodies.

The younger man is D. O. Sundgren, 123 West 26th street, Minneapolis. The elderly man's name is Andrew Johnson, 1118 1/2 Seventh Street South, Minneapolis. It is said that he was about forty years of age. Sundgren is about 25 years old, is married and has a baby fifteen months old.

According to residents of Mille Lacs and Dr. A. K. Cohen, who was in a fishing party on the lake Sunday, Sundgren and his partner drove up from Minneapolis on Saturday morning, stopping at the Johnson boat livery on the creek south of St. Albans resort.

About 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the two chartered one of Mr. Johnson's best row boats, and started on a fishing trip. They took their lunch with them, and told the proprietor of the boat livery that they expected to spend the night fishing on the lake.

Charles Barnard, proprietor of St. Albans, noticed a white object, which he knew to be a row boat, about a mile and a half out on the lake, and saw a black object on top of it. This was at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A short time later he noticed that the black object had disappeared.

On Sunday morning when the men failed to return from their fishing trip, Mr. Johnson became alarmed and formed a searching party. The boat was found out in the lake where Mr. Barnard had seen it. It was capsized and held by its anchor in about thirty feet of water.

The men came to Mille Lacs in a Ford, bearing license No. 1055-A. Authorities looked up this number in the office of the secretary of state, but the car was purchased second-hand recently and had not as yet been transferred to its present owner, Andrew Johnson.

Mrs. Sundgren was notified of the tragedy Sunday morning and came immediately to the lake. She found her husband's cap, it is reported, tossed up on the west shore of the lake. Mrs. Sundgren returned to Minneapolis Sunday evening, since she had left her baby at home and feared for its welfare.

On Monday morning Sheriff Fred J. Reid took grappling hooks and other apparatus from the city to the scene of the accident. On his return at noon, Mr. Reid reported that one of the oars belonging to the boat had been found a quarter of a mile from where the boat was anchored, also a heavy mackinaw, an ordinary coat, and a belt, floating west of the scene of the accident, near the west shore of the lake. The oar bore the number 10, corresponding with the boat number.

The rowboat, according to the sheriff, was 16 feet long, very wide, and extremely hard to tip, two men being able to hang to one side of it very easily without it taking in water. People are at a loss to determine the cause of the accident, since the lake was calm, and the boat very stable.

Mr. Johnson resided at 1118 1/2 Seventh Street South, Minneapolis. He is said to have been an old experienced fisherman. In the pocket of his coat which drifted ashore was found an automobile key which fits the Ford touring car in which the two men drove to Mille Lacs. In the car was mail, carrying Sundgren's name and address in Minneapolis. Johnson, it is reported, had taken

LEGION LEADER TELLS OF THINGS IT HAS ACHIEVED

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 15.—Calling on the American Legion to launch on roads of service heretofore untraveled, John R. Quinn, retiring national commander, today gave the convention of the veterans' organization an accounting of his stewardship as its leader during the past twelve months.

"A half decade ago the Legion was but an ideal," Quinn said. "It inspired great hopes in some, trust in others, and was the object of fear in a few. Today it has passed its nonage and begun a career which past accomplishments indicate will be replete with great deeds."

"During the year in which I have been your leader, two major triumphs have been won by the Legion, triumphs which have proved its great influence for good and crystallized it into a tremendous force working for the betterment of our country."

A Great Achievement

"The greatest triumph was the passage of the Reed-Johnson bill, the greatest reform legislation for the disabled since the creation of the Veterans' Bureau."

"The other outstanding achievement for 1924 was the enactment of the adjusted compensation law. The opponents of this bill, using it as an open means of attack on the Legion wished utterly to destroy the organization. Instead of crushing our organization our enemies proved our inherent strength."

"To the best of our ability we have endeavored to carry out the mandate given us by the San Francisco convention a year ago."

College Girl Held on Charge of Trying To Kill Physician

Chicago, Sept. 15.—A psychopathic examination was made today of Miss Rosalie O'Reilly, pretty 21-year-old graduate of the University of Chicago, who last night attempted to kill Dr. Alexander C. Weiner, 62, staff physician at the West Shore hospital.

Miss O'Reilly said she wanted to avenge the death of her mother, who was treated by Dr. Weiner.

Dr. Weiner was seated in his office when the girl walked in, pointed a revolver at him and pulled the trigger twice. The weapon failed to go off and the girl fled, but was captured by Dr. Weiner after a short chase.

"I meant to torture him," Miss O'Reilly told police.

In her bag was found an assortment of poisons which she said she had planned to use on the doctor. Dr. Weiner explained that he treated the girl's mother for an incurable disease and that she died about three years ago.

Miss O'Reilly is librarian at a public library branch here.

The girl is a brilliant student and has distinguished herself in Latin and Greek, her father, Atty. George B. O'Reilly, said.

"Rosalie has been brooding ever since her mother died," he explained. "Her mind may be affected."

Sundgren along, as the latter was a good car driver.

Mr. Barnard would appreciate the use of a strong pair of field glasses, with which to watch for clothing or the bodies, should they come to the surface before they are found by the searchers.

HUNGER PANGS SEIZE DAVIS AT BARBECUE

THE DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE SNIFFS THE
REDOLENT ODOR

BEEF ROASTED OVER NIGHT IN MISSOURI GREAT
PITS

(By United Press)

Eastwood Farms, Bunceton, Mo., Sept. 15.—Hunger pangs seized John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate today as he sniffed the redolent odor that filled the air about the farmhouse of Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, democratic nominee for governor. The smell that made Davis think of dinner time was of savory barbecued beef—tons of it sizzling in three great pits in the grove where Missouri democracy was to gather to hear the party's standard-bearer start his state campaign with a bang.

"I will be ready whenever the bell rings," said Davis when told by Geo. A. Weyland, master of the feast, that the beef had been roasting in the great pits most of the night and would soon be "fit for a king."

Long before the special train bearing Davis arrived roads leading to the Nelson farm, six miles from the railroad, were jammed with vehicles and estimates of a 40,000 crowd apparently were not exaggerated.

Even airplanes were used by some of the visitors to reach the little central Missouri town.

DAVIS MAKES AN OLD-FASHIONED SPEECH

Eastwood Farms, Bunceton, Mo., Sept. 15.—In the picturesque setting of an old-fashioned barbecue, John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, today made an old-fashioned speech to Missouri democracy.

Davis first stirred the enthusiasm of the monster audience of 40,000, gathered from all parts of central Missouri, a democratic stronghold, by calling the roll of local statesmen of bygone days—Benton, Vest, Cockrell, Stone and Champ Clark.

It was a new method of campaigning by Davis and the effect upon the crowd was magical. The mere mention of revered bygone names brought storms of applause from the crowd and ribald yells from bent, whiskered men who smoked cornob pipes and nodded approval as the candidate spoke.

In a glowing tribute to Champ Clark, Davis threw in a personal touch by referring to the kindness of the late speaker to him when a young member of the House.

"The democracy of the nation is poorer for the passing, but richer for the life of Champ Clark," he said.

Then, taking inspiration from the crowd, Davis flayed the republican party, calling it the party of "special privilege." He referred to the scandals of the administration and pledged himself to give the people honest government if elected.

Davis made an appeal to the women of the country to support the democratic ticket by declaring that the party ideal "is a fair and equal partnership, with all the men and women of the nation working side by side for the common welfare of themselves and their posterity."

"There is and can be no diversity nor conflict in their interests," he said, "and then a nation needs, now and always, the stimulation of joint endeavor."

Tom Moore's Visit to This Country Recalled

Thomas Moore's visit to Niagara and other parts of Canada in 1804 is recalled by a Niagara reader of the Toronto Globe.

"I first heard of it," she says, "when visiting the house Moore lived in at Ste. Anne. An old French gentleman who took us to the house told us that few Canadians seemed to know that Moore had lived in Canada for many months and written a number of poems and songs while here. He quoted 'The Whip-poor-will' and said it was written at Niagara. The old house of Martin McLellan (who was killed while saving the guns May 27, 1813), now owned by Mr. Usher, was the house from which the smoke so gracefully curled," for it was the only house whose chimneys could be seen from Fort George."

Moore's collected poems contain a group of his compositions while in America, passing through the eastern states to Buffalo, Niagara falls, Niagara, Montreal, Quebec and Halifax. It is evident from his poems and his prose introduction that it was not a very happy visit, though a poem like "The Canadian Boat Song" is a worthy fruit of his impressions. When he took ship at Halifax his farewell poem referred to "chill Nova Scotia's unpromising strand," and there are references to what he considered the crudity of the New world.

How Malays Get Fire From Compressed Air

The inhabitants of the Malay peninsula have a method of obtaining fire which is probably unique among primitive peoples. They utilize the principle that the compression of air raises its temperature, one known to every man who has ever pumped up a tire, but one which it is most surprising to find in the possession of a group of aborigines.

A tiny pump of wood, hardly more than three inches in length and with a bore of about half an inch, is used, says the New York World. This pump is open at one end, closed at the other. In it fits closely a plunger equipped with a round knob at one end and a piston-like expansion at the other.

The piston end of the plunger is dipped in tinder, which the native carries in a moth's cocoon, which makes an absolutely watertight container. The piston is placed in the pump and the knob struck sharply.

The compression of the air raises the temperature to such a degree that the tinder is ignited, and when the piston is withdrawn it is found to be glowing. The native blows on the glowing mass, inserts it into his ready-laid fuel, and presto! he has his fire. This method is quicker by far than the friction method used by most primitive races.

Man's Chief Interest

She had gone out to dinner with her suitor. She had felt in particularly gay and sprightly mood, and had talked, she felt, quite entertainingly of this and that. Many had been the amusing incidents she had told.

But toward the end of the evening her suitor seemed very dejected and unhappy.

"What has been the trouble? Did anything happen today to make you blue?" she asked. Surely the evening had been a success.

"No, the day was a very good one," he said.

"But tonight? Haven't you enjoyed it?" she asked, surprised.

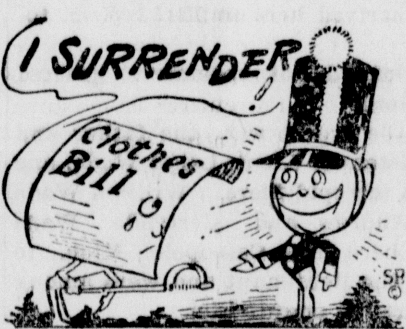

"Well," he returned, "you know a man likes to talk about himself when he takes a girl out, and you haven't given me a chance all evening."

Momentous Question

The following anecdote is taken from the "Life of the Rt. Hon. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman," by J. A. Spender. A picture appeared in an English paper which bore the title, "Is It Peace or War?" In which Campbell-Bannerman was photographed talking with King Edward. Around them the visitors stood at a respectful distance. A friend of his said later: "The artist has hit you off very well." Campbell-Bannerman looked at the picture quizzically and said: "Would you like to know what the king was saying to me?" The friend said he would. "He wanted to have my opinion whether halibut was better baked or boiled."

MINNESOTA LAKE REGION PUBLICITY

This Section Gets Some Very Favorable Advertising in "The Lions Club Magazine"

ARTICLE BY W. P. KIMBALL

Brainerd is Only City in State, Outside of Twin Cities, That is Mentioned

The Minnesota lake region is given some very favorable advertising in "The Lions Club Magazine," under the full-page heading, "Minnesota's Famous Ten Thousand," in the September issue. The article is written by W. P. Kimball, and Brainerd is the only city in the state, outside the twin cities, that is mentioned.

The Lions Club magazine is a periodical of about the size of the Literary Digest, which is issued monthly and reaches every member of that organization in the United States and Canada, so that Minnesota's lake region is thus given some extended and valuable advertising. Mr. Kimball's article follows:

Minnesota's ten thousand lakes have become a national affair.

The lakes have been there for several thousand years, according to the geologists, but it was not until a few years ago that anybody seemed to care. This United States has been so busy getting itself settled down that it was not until comparatively recent years that the philosophy of a rest now and then began to be taken seriously.

We passed our great national parks for a century; we have always looked at the soil so intently that we have had little time to look at the view. But now that the view has come into prominence, and now that we have found out that lakes are good for more than just a handy place to go fishing on July 4th, Minnesota with her light brigade, the ten thousand lakes, has about as much privacy as a goldfish.

The ten thousand lakes are something new under the sun in the way of natural playgrounds. The St. Lawrence river has ten thousand islands, but the groups of Minnesota lakes range in character from the lake of a pleasant countryside, surrounded by oak and maple trees and rimmed by a highway, to the virgin north-woods lakes of the north, rock-bound, deep, and cold, reached only by arduous portages.

And the country that contains these lakes varies infinitely. You enter Minnesota via the Mississippi valley, and are plunged into an almost mountainous country. The Mississippi and its tributaries have cut the country up into high, rocky hills, which give it the Hudson-like appearance.

As you progress north through the twin cities you enter a rolling farming region, discerned from others only in the lakes that dot the landscape. Going still farther north you enter the lake region, where the lakes fairly run into each other in their efforts to crowd out the dirt of the landscapes. The waters are clear, the sand beaches many, the forests deep and full of wild life.

This park-like region is traversed by wonderful automobile roads, swept by lake breezes almost constantly, and the lakes have comfortable summer resorts ranging from the little log cabins to the big summer hotels. There are free camp grounds for motor campers throughout, for the motor tourist has adopted Minnesota, and cars from every state in the union are seen on the Minnesota highways all summer long.

Going northeast from the lake park region you enter a district of pine forests, and here we have Itasca state park and the source of the Mississippi river. The lakes are just as numerous as in any part of the state, and the good roads, the summer resorts, and the camp grounds continue, extending over the whole "northwoods" district of the state and as far south as Mille Lacs lake, in the Brainerd lake district.

Fishing is fine in Minnesota. "It's a poor fish," says Secretary H. C. Hotelling, of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association. "That hasn't seen Minnesota lakes." The black bass is king. He is found throughout the state in large numbers. In the rocky St. Croix and in the Mississippi, the small mouth bass is found. The true tiger muskie, and his cousin, the great northern pike abound everywhere. The wall-eyed pike is very plentiful in the central and northern parts, and of course the smaller pan fish are to be had in virtually all lakes in the state.

Minnesota is noted for its roads. It has instituted a state highway system over the state and every part is now connected with every other part by these state highways. There are hundred of miles of paved highways, and the thousands of miles of the finest kind of gravelled roads.

Minnesota has taken its summer tourist business seriously, and has spared no pains in properly fulfilling its mission as the summer playground of the South and Middle West. Its hundreds of tourist camp grounds testify to its hospitality toward the motor tourist. These camp grounds range from a shady lake shore with the bare essential conveniences to pretentious grounds which have shower baths, stoves, kitchens, and in fact almost everything except a roof.

There are summer resorts which range from a group of log cabins to "dress up" summer hotels. They fit every mood of the vacationist, every desire, every purse.

The Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association, 131 E. 6th street, St. Paul, was organized to promote and care for the tourist traffic. It invites people to come, and does its best to see that they have a successful vacation once they have arrived. The association is a semi-public institution, and makes no charges for its services, its only mission being to help the tourist.

"Come to Minnesota" is the slogan of the association. It is a good slogan. So far, nobody has regretted having heeded it.

FARMERS RECEIVE SEED CORN HINTS

N. D. AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL
EXPERT TELLS HOW TO USE
DAMAGED PRODUCT

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 13.—Many farmers in this state may have seed corn from their own fields to plant next spring if the seed ears are properly cared for, H. L. Walster, agronomist at the North Dakota agricultural college, believes.

"Corn harvested in the 'early dough' stage may furnish seed of perfect germinating capacity provided such seed is properly dried in a well ventilated place," he says.

"In cool, moist weather some artificial heat is required to hasten the drying process, but when heat is applied care must be taken to provide good ventilation.

"T. A. Kiesselbach of the Nebraska experiment station reports the following germination percentages on corn harvested at different stages: Milk stage, 80 per cent; late milk stage, 92 per cent; roasting ear, 94; late roasting ears, 97; denting, 97; glazing, 96; mature, 98. The results were from averages of three-year trials. None of this corn had been subjected to any frost.

"Mr. Kiesselbach has the answer for us also as to the effect of frost on possible germination of corn at various stages of maturity. He picked corn from the field immediately after the first killing frost. After properly drying this corn he found that well-matured solid ears showed 98 per cent germination; rubbery, twisty ears showed 94 per cent; very rubbery ears with soft kernels, 92 per cent; ears with very soft grain, 92; ears in a late dough stage, 82; ears in a milk stage, 44."

The degree of injury, according to Mr. Walster, depends how low the temperature falls and how long the low temperature persists.

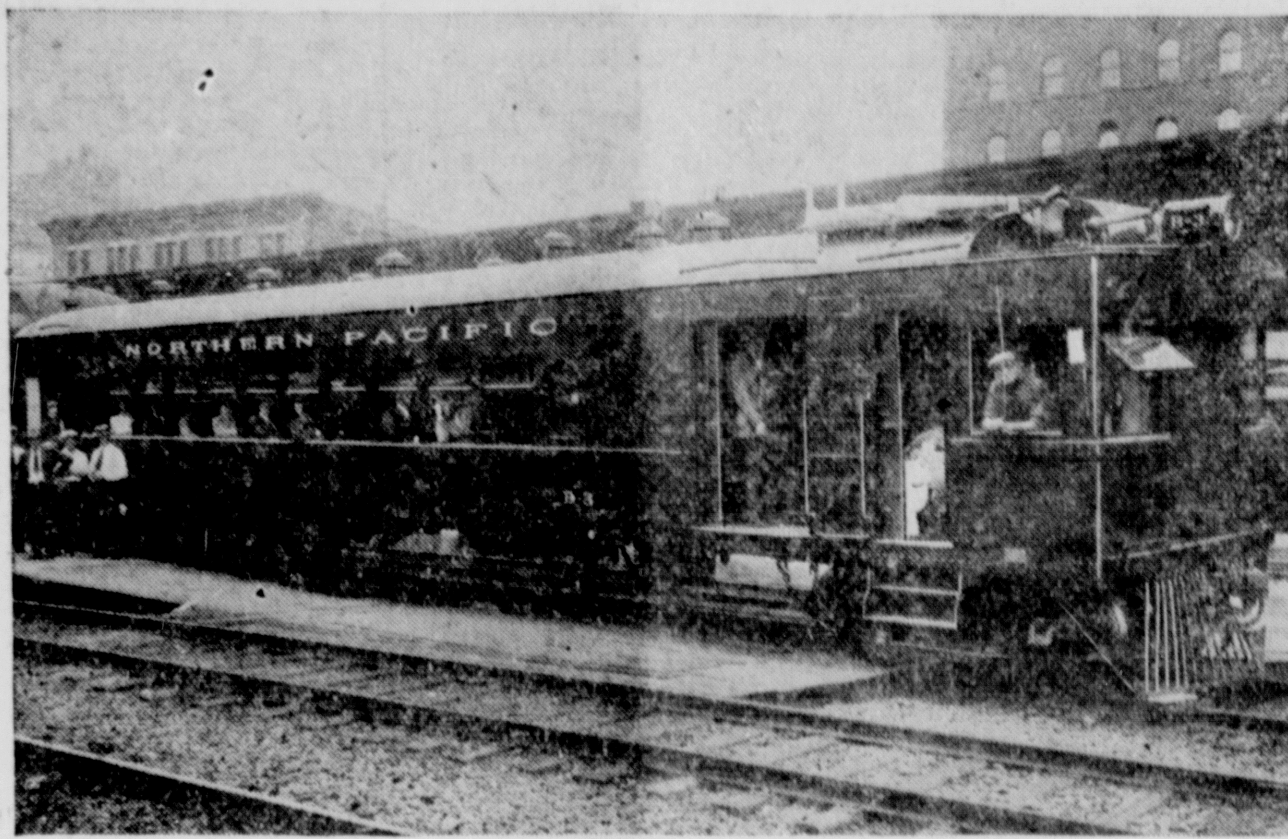

Mr. Walster explains as follows how the North Dakota farmer may make use of these facts in choosing his seed corn.

"If frost has not yet occurred, watch the weather reports carefully and pick enough seed as ripe as possible the day before frost is predicted. If a killing frost has already happened, pick the driest ears at once. Run a germination test of them after drying. Plant immature seed thicker than usual, for even if it has had high germination test, the vigor of the seed may be low. Save North Dakota's early strains of corn. Finally, make a firm resolve to avoid planting late maturing varieties. It is better to save and stick to the kind of products that are dependable in this state."

This gas electric motor car just put in service by the Northern Pacific Railway is one of the newest developments in rail transportation. The car, B-3, is electrically driven, the power being generated on board by a marine type gas engine. The B-3 is the first of a series that will be used to provide additional service on Northern Pacific main and branch lines. It seats 55 people, has a baggage compartment, and is so high-powered that it will pull a trailer, (a regular passenger coach) if desired. Immediately following delivery, this car went into service on a main line run between Staples, Minn., and Fargo, N. D., a distance of 111 miles.

probably the poorest land occupied by any, the Navajoes present the remarkable paradox of being the only tribe showing a steady increase in population.

Battling against the combined forces of jagged, sterile mountain flats, drought and a government with which they have never treated for peace, the Navajo Indians present the most striking example of thrift in the nation today.

From the cliff dwellings of Mesa Verde, where their forefathers of thousands of years ago somehow eked out a livelihood, down into the desert regions of Arizona, the Navajoes till their dry farm lands, while women of the tribe turn out a considerable portion of the livelihood with their nationally famous Navajo blankets, pottery and trinkets.

In the generations since the white men began to encroach on lands of the Indians, treaties have been negotiated everywhere but in the Navajo section. So worthless are the Navajo lands that no attempt has ever been made in Washington to reach an agreement to obtain their property.

Theoretically, peace has never been declared between the Navajoes and the United States government. No thought of hostilities has existed on either side for decades, however. Peaceful by nature, the Navajoes have never waged warfare on their white neighbors.

Yet, while other tribes fast dwindle and decay, the Navajoes prosper on their meagre holdings, making the scanty living which is all they desire, residing in contentment unknown to the others, and steadily increasing in numbers.

On that date the Northern Pacific will have completed the last signal tower on its entire 2,800 miles of road and the entire system between St. Paul and the coast will be protected by the automatic signals after that time. The stretch between Little Falls and Staples has been completed this summer, forming the connecting link. This is said to be the first complete automatic block signal system in the northwest.

Movies of the Event

Representatives of the five twin city papers will be in Little Falls as well as representatives of the Associated Press and motion pictures of the celebration will be taken, so that Little Falls will gain nation wide publicity concerning the affair both through the newspapers and the motion pictures.

Arrangements are being made to have the Boy Scouts of the city attend the celebration and assist in handling the large crowd which is expected. ## DRINK WATER WHEN KIDNEYS HURT YOU

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Adv't

A WESTERN VIEW OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

HERE is a western close-up of President Coolidge, as penned by the editor of the Portland, Oregon, Spectator. He says, in part, in an extended editorial, that President Coolidge minds his own business, and permits those of us who are peaceful and law-abiding to mind ours. He has neither the time nor the disposition to enunciate and try to enforce rules as to what we should eat and wear, nor as to the number of children we should have, nor as to our religious, fraternal, and social activities. If with some of his distinguished predecessors we compare Mr. Coolidge, we shall find ourselves loving him for his masterly tact in attending to his own knitting.

We get comforting glimpses of the rather silent and quite unspectacular man in his speech accepting the nomination. He thinks it is no part of government's business to interfere with the lawful private affairs of the citizens. He demands economy in public service, in order that we shall not have to work so hard for the government and have more time to work for ourselves. He believes in national defense, in the purity of the home, in honest dealing among ourselves and with our neighbors, and in that drift which, promising us a competence, insures our independence. Mr. Coolidge recognizes the fact that some things are not as they might be and should be, but he does not try to improve them with a phrase nor promise to cure them with political nostrum.

Concluding his speech of acceptance, the President said: "We are likely to hear a great deal of discussion about liberal thought and progressive action. It is well for the country to have liberality in thought and progress in action, but its greatest asset is common sense. In the commonplace things of life lies the strength of the nation. It is not in brilliant conceptions and strokes of genius that we shall find the chief reliance of our country, but in the home, in the school, and in religion. America will continue to defend these shrines. Every evil force that seeks to desecrate or destroy them will find a Higher Power has endowed the people with an inherent spirit of resistance. The people know the difference between pretense and reality. They want to be told the truth."

A LESSON IN COOPERATION

THE present campaign to place peonies in practically every yard of our city is more than a mere selling of flowers. An organization whose motto is "service" has undertaken a plan which would add much more to the beauty and to the property value of our city than has been undertaken in a long time. If fully carried out it will cost at least $1,000, and yet it is so planned that the cost will be little to each one.

The success of the whole scheme is cooperation. One yard with four peony plants in bloom will not make much of an impression, but if 8,000 or 10,000 peonies bloom in Brainerd at one time, the effect will be wonderful. It will not be burdensome on any one and yet each one participating will secure the benefit of what his neighbor has done.

Such attention as this will call to Brainerd, by the favorable impression upon those driving through out city, cannot be estimated. Surely such beauty and the consequent planting of other flowers which this will inspire will naturally make Brainerd a more pleasing resident city and will increase property values.

There is not a resident who can afford to fail to cooperate. Buy peonies this week, "Make Brainerd Blossom."

TAX REDUCTION

TAX reduction offers as many problems and requires more tact in its dealings, than does mere tax increase. Tax reduction means decreased activity in some plan of government or the total abolishment of such activity. Tax reduction means doing without some things, or doing away with them entirely.

The great question in tax reduction is, what shall be wiped out or what shall be curtailed in measure. For instance, at the September 22 meeting of the Crow Wing County Tax Reduction League, these appropriations will be considered:

Shall the county continue to appropriate $1,000 for the county fair?

Shall the appropriation of approximately $300 for the 10,000 Lakes Association be continued?

Shall the appropriation of approximately $300 for the poultry show be continued?

CROSBY CREAMERY SUCCESSFUL

THE growth of the Crosby creamery is evidence of the successful strides made by dairying in Crow Wing county. In its two years of operation the production of butter has advanced until now 50,000 pounds of cream are handled monthly.

The creamery has been every bit as important to the Crosby business section as the opening of a new mine. Previously, before the opening of the creamery, cream of the district was shipped to Duluth and Aitkin. That cream now finds a home market and aids in building up the vicinity.

The product of the creamery, some 12,000 pounds of butter monthly, finds a ready market on the Cuyuna Iron range and the balance is shipped to New York.

It seems America is as hard to mobilize on Defense Test Day as on election day. In revolutionary days there were no movies, no electric lights, no flivvers, no golf, no magazine, no Sunday papers, no railroads, no plumbing, no things to take one's mind off the main issue. Then the community at Lexington mobilized in one minute.

GOLDEN tresses are easily obtained by the bobbed hair girls of Paris. They just slip on gold or silver ones. The fad was originated by Defosse, a designer.

GETTING married at an American Legion convention may cause the couple to carry a martial air through life.

tated by you at your last national convention in San Francisco just eleven months ago, have been closely followed. Foremost of these has been the creation of the Community Service and Civic Betterment Bureau which functions within the American legion division.

"In our child welfare program, rearing progress has been made. At Otter Lake, Michigan, one billion functions. We have thirty orphans of Legionnaires there. At Independence, Kansas, Dan Danney, whose two sons died as a result of war service, has given us 338 acres of ground where the second billion will be erected. A trust fund of $100,000 to insure completion of the project is virtually raised.

"Today there are 5,000 orphans whose fathers were either killed in action, or died as a result of the war service. We have assumed the obligation of cherishing these sons and daughters of patriots. The work for them has just begun.

"Our country calls to us for aid. In Americanism work lies our opportunity to give service. Let our slogan be—In time of disaster—the Legion; in time of need—the Legion.

"Let us pray God that by His guidance every act of ours will prove that the Legion's claim to be an institution of service is no idle boast."

Mrs. Franklin Lee Bishop, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, presented the greetings of the auxiliary to the Legion.

Robert J. Murphy, Chief Chemist de Fer of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, extended the greetings from that organization, describing it as the official playground of the Legion, and an organization to promote good fellowship, blind friendships and promote "esprit de corps."

A report of the National Rehabilitation committee was read and followed by an address of Frank T. Hines, director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. He declared that there is now "nothing wrong" with the Veterans' Bureau and urged that criticism cease.

John Barton Payne, head of the American Red Cross then addressed the convention. He told of the work for disabled veterans.

Greetings from the G. A. R. and United Confederate Veterans followed, and the Legionnaires joined in a memorial service before adjournment.

This afternoon the auxiliary and Forty and Eight conventions got underway. Legion committee meetings were scheduled.

OFFERS PRAYER FOR PACIFISTS

St. Paul, Sept. 15.—Praying for the pacifists that "their hearts might be as soft as their heads," Ezra C. Clemons, chaplain, today invoked the "patience of God" for them in opening the sixth annual convention of the American Legion.

"God knows," he said, "we do not again want war, but we pray that we shall be adequately prepared to fight for God and country if we ever need to be prepared."

He prayed the blessing of the Almighty upon President Calvin Coolidge "who is our friend now."

With the advancement of the colors and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Miss Alma Forker, the conclave was under way.

The California delegation stormed the rostrum, planted the California banner in the hands of National Commander John R. Quinn, and to the raspy notes of a wheezy old portable organ sang the praises of Quinn and the state of sunshine and roses. The demonstration concluded with a shower of confetti that smothered everyone on the front of the platform.

Leo M. Harlow, state commander of Massachusetts, presented Commander Quinn with a gavel made from the historic Washington elm, where George Washington took command of the Federal armies—the shrine of freedom.

The outstanding address of the opening session was the response of James T. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Transcript, on behalf of Commander Quinn, advocating a defense policy.

Williams called upon the delegates for leaders that will "free their countrymen from government by the clerical bloc and overthrow autocracy of class, which is repugnant alike to men and things American."

"Defense Day," he said, "was a day of dedication to the service of the nation. Millions of those who answered the call in keeping with that old Christian text that 'when a strong man armed keepeth his good in peace' manifested anew their resolve to act under the leadership of those who believe the means of preserving peace is to be prepared for war."

"The enthusiasm with which Defense Day was observed attests the righteous indignation of the American people against the attempt of autocracy of the cloth to set up in this country a government by the clerical body. The church and state must be kept absolutely separate."

"When a clerical bloc attempts in the name of church to meddle with the business of state, when any propagandists of the cloth, either here at home, in the Far East or in the Near East, or elsewhere, organize sapping expeditions for the purpose of undermining our national defense, our traditional policy, foreign or domestic, the Legionnaires can be counted upon to supply for their country a leadership that will liberate them from government by the clerical bloc."

Williams denounced the financial bloc which fought the Legion in its battle for adjusted compensation. He recounted the battles for revision of the veterans' bureau and the passage of the World War Veterans' Act.

He appealed to the Legionnaires to:

"Look out for yourselves by looking out for the youths of the country."

He urged that every Legion post be responsible for at least one Boy Scout troop.

"That is the way to keep the Boy Scouts away from rival religionists."

Frank T. Hines, director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, declared that the Bureau had been "purged of all iniquities" in the last two years and asserted there is now an active propaganda on against the Bureau for political purposes only.

He declared that Legionnaires, disabled veterans and the public had been restored to confidence in the Veterans' Bureau and urged the Legionnaires to combat the propaganda against the Bureau for the "sake of the veterans."

"There is nothing wrong with the Veterans' Bureau now," said Hines.

Memorial services for comrades who have gone on followed the morning round of speeches.

Taps, retirement of the colors and adjournment left the delegates free this afternoon.

Spanish Swamp Home of Wild Camel Herd

Wild camels exist in western Europe, within two days' journey from Piccadilly circus, writes a correspondent of the London Mail. There are a considerable number of them in this mysterious "colony," but no one knows exactly how many. To survive they have actually become semi-aquatic.

Up the Guadalquivir in Andalusia is the dreariest malarial swamp in Spain, and perhaps in the world, an endless vista of waterlogged wilderness, broken only by occasional low islands covered with willow scrub. Here, among enormous flocks of gulls and greylag geese, teal, widgeon, pochard and mallard, dwell the outlaw camels. In another five years the colony will have completed a century of life in western Europe. Their ancestors were brought over from Africa in 1829 by the Marquis de Villafraques for farm work.

Villafraques's horses panicked, however, as horses will unless carefully "acclimatized" to camel, and there were some nasty accidents. Rather than have the work of his estates upset by labor trouble, the marquis turned his camels loose. Some were killed. The descendants of those who took to the "marisma" survived.

Vision of Cookhouse Reads Like Gulliver

In Paul Bunyan's camp there was a great cookhouse with a kitchen like another Mammoth cave, and a dining hall wherein, under huge and lofty beams, the tables were ranged like the ranks of an army corps drawn up for parade on a plain. Here were served breakfasts of ham and eggs and hot cakes, and huge and incomparable Sunday dinners and the simpler weekday meals of which the coffee was most lightly praised, writes James Stephens in the American Mercury.

Paul Bunyan invented a machine for the mixing of the hot-cake batter, so perfectly devised that paying contractors now employ small models of it for mixing cement. The range on which a battalion of cooks fried the hot cakes was greased by a ski champion from Norway, who skied to and from with sides of bacon strapped to his feet.

And that the men in the far end of the cookhouse might be served before, the hot cakes cooled, the flunkies speeded on roller skates. It required a crew of 11 teamsters with teams and scrapers to keep the yard back of the cookhouse cleared of coffee grounds and egg shells.

Kerbau's Sensitive Nose

Malay bull fights are not like those we are accustomed to read about, a writer in the Youth's Companion tells us. The contestants are generally water buffaloes—animals that, says Mr. Carveth Wells in Asia, the Malays call kerbau.

A kerbau, or carabao, as it is often written in English, makes, continues Mr. Wells, a white man's life miserable because he does not like the white man's smell, though he doesn't mind the smell of a Chinese or a Malay. If you think you have no smell, just go near a kerbau! He not only sees you a long way off, but he instantly begins to sniff the air. Then he lays his ears back and rushes at you. I remember once being chased out of a rice field by a kerbau. The rice was growing in deep mud, and I was rushing along up to my knees, with the great animal floundering behind me. While I was striking for help a little Malay boy about four years old and quite naked ran up, caught the bull by the nose and led him away! Never in my life had I felt such a fool!

"Iberian"

The Iberian peninsula was so named from the ancient inhabitants, who were known as the Iberes. According to some authorities the word merely means "inhabitants." The name seems to have been applied by the earlier Greek navigators to the peoples on the eastern coast of Spain, probably originally those who dwelt by the River Iberus, the modern Ebro. Iberian thus means sometimes the population of the peninsula in general and sometimes the peoples of some definite race who formed one element in the population.

Malay bull fights are not like those we are accustomed to read about, a writer in the Youth's Companion tells us. The contestants are generally water buffaloes—animals that, says Mr. Carveth Wells in Asia, the Malays call kerbau.

A kerbau, or carabao, as it is often written in English, makes, continues Mr. Wells, a white man's life miserable because he does not like the white man's smell, though he doesn't mind the smell of a Chinese or a Malay. If you think you have no smell, just go near a kerbau! He not only sees you a long way off, but he instantly begins to sniff the air. Then he lays his ears back and rushes at you. I remember once being chased out of a rice field by a kerbau. The rice was growing in deep mud, and I was rushing along up to my knees, with the great animal floundering behind me. While I was shrieking for help a little Malay boy about four years old and quite naked ran up, caught the bull by the nose and led him away! Never in my life had I felt such a fool!

"Iberian"

The Iberian peninsula was so named from the ancient inhabitants, who were known as the Iberes. According to some authorities the word merely means "inhabitants." The name seems to have been applied by the earlier Greek navigators to the peoples on the eastern coast of Spain, probably originally those who dwelt by the River Iberus, the modern Ebro. Iberian thus means sometimes the population of the peninsula in general and sometimes the peoples of some definite race who formed one element in the population.

Main Road Lacking in Allurement of Byway

Even before the automobiles took over the main roads it was better to walk in the byways. Along the lesser roads people are not too hurried for a friendly greeting as they pass, and the very animals of the back country are less sophisticated—the horses and cattle look up from their pasture to gaze with frank interest at each passerby.

Then, coming from time to time across the quiet of the countryside, are sounds that men have always heard gladly—the far-off crowing, like a mellow bugle, of a barnyard king—the distant creak and rumble of a farmer's heavy wagon rolling on upon the hills.

But best of all are the moments of discovery—late afternoon, when the shadows are growing long, and the road, bending suddenly about a low hill facing toward the bay, comes out upon a wide view down a valley wooded with dark green pines—and then, beyond, a great stretch of fair water, deeply blue.

That is the allurements of the byways; quaintness is all about, and beauty lies in wait—perhaps around the next turning of the lane.—Collier's.

Pearls Gathered in Many Parts of World

The pearl is a globular concretion found in the shells of certain bivalve molluscs, highly valued for ornamental purposes, and classed among gems. The principal sources of pearls are the pearl oyster, found throughout the Pacific ocean; the pearl mussel; and the freshwater mussel. The chief pearl fisheries are those of Ceylon, carried on principally in the Gulf of Mannar. Those of the Persian gulf were known to the ancients. Pearls are also obtained from the Sulu archipelago, northeastern Borneo; New Guinea, Gulf of Mexico, and Australia. Native divers descend 60 or 70 feet, weighted by a stone and lowered from a boat by a rope. They carry a net and gather the pearl oysters in it. They remain below for 30 or 40 seconds at a time, and are hoisted to the surface after signaling with a rope. The oysters are allowed to rot on the beach in the sun's rays. Then in seven or ten days the decayed oysters are searched for pearls.

Artificial pearls are largely made in France, Germany, and Italy, by blowing a thin globe of glass and filling it with a solution of ammonia and fish scales.

Prometheus

The word Prometheus, the name of a character in Grecian mythology, means forethought, and forethought is the father of invention. According to the Grecian tradition, Prometheus taught man the use of fire, and instructed him in architecture, astronomy, mathematics, writing, rearing cattle, navigation, medicine, the art of prophecy, working metal, and indeed, every art known to man. The tale is that he made man of clay, and, in order to endow his clay with life, stole fire from heaven and brought it to earth in a hollow tube. Zeus, who in Grecian mythology corresponds to Jupiter in the Roman mythology, in punishing Prometheus, chained him to a rock, and sent an eagle to consume his liver daily. During the night it grew again, and thus the torment of Prometheus was ceaseless, until Hercules shot the eagle, and unchained the captive.

Shakespeare or Bacon?

A heated discussion arose in the Nineteenth century from an attempt, on the part of Miss Delia Bacon, to prove that Lord Francis Bacon was the author of the plays commonly attributed to Shakespeare. William H. Smith, an English scholar; Nathaniel Holmes, in his "Authorship of Shakespeare," and Mrs. Henry Holmes have also labored in the same direction. In 1888 Ignatius Donnelly produced his work entitled "The Great Cryptogram," wherein he endeavored to show "that Bacon's authorship is avowed under a cypher in the text of the plays in the folio of 1623." Shakespearean scholars do not accept the Baconian theory of authorship.

Odd Form of Punishment

In the days when it was customary to bestow the title "Mrs." on all women of mature years, whether married or unmarried, deprivation of the prefixes Mr. and Mrs. was among the punishments enforced in the American colonies, says the Detroit News. The records of Massachusetts show that in 1680 Josias Plafstowe was condemned "for stealing four baskets of corn from the Indians, to return them eight baskets again, to be fined five pounds and hereafter to be called Josias, not Mr., as he used to be."

Though the penal code also provided for depriving women of the prefix, there is no record of this clause having been enforced.

The First Ad

The first known English newspaper advertisement concerned, not pills, soap, tobacco, liquor or ladies' clothing, but a lost horse. It appeared in the Moderate, of March 27, 1649, and ran: "Reader, thou art entreated to enquire after a blackish and kind of piebald nag, very poor, his face, feet and flank white, and a little white tip on his tall, wall eyes. He was stolen from grass from John Rotherham, of Barnet, in Hertfordshire. Whosoever will enquire, find him out, and bring or send tidings of him shall have what content they will for their pains."

Genuine Life Drama in Chaplin Picture

For real, genuine interesting entertainment go to the Lyceum theatre and see Charles Chaplin's first dramatic production, "A Woman of Paris," with Edna Purviance. This United Artists attraction, which is playing again tonight and Tuesday, is one of the real treats which are so often sought, but so rarely seen, in pictures.

This poignant drama of life carries one through a phase of Parisian

"A WOMAN OF PARIS" featuring EDNA PURVIANCE. Written and Directed by Charles Chaplin

life, following the career of Marie St. Clair as though one had known this interesting character oneself, that one feels one is a part of the drama being enacted.

Even to the end, which has nothing to do with passionate close-ups, romance ever-lasting, but is instead, utterly human, reasonable—the aftermath of a molten, passionate, much-tried soul. "A Woman of Paris" gives a certain something for the spectator to take away from the theatre, something to think about—the fact that life still rolls on around one, much like the horse-drawn cart and the millionaire's limousine.

Gloria Kept on the Hop Making New Production

Gloria Swanson spent several strenuous days in preparation for her latest Paramount picture, "Manhandled." She worked a day in one of New York's largest department stores to get a line on how shop girls think and act. That is, she worked almost a day before the other girls in the store recognized her despite the blonde wig and dark glasses she wore for a disguise. When Miss Swanson was recognized there was no work done for the rest of the day at the notion counter, and the store management, in order to prevent a near riot, had to get her out of the back door as quickly as possible.

In the picture Miss Swanson plays the role of a shop girl, who climbs the false social ladder of success, getting silks and furs, only to find in the end that honest love is the best policy.

"Manhandled," is an Allan Dwan production, with Tom Moore, Frank Morgan, Lilyan Tashman, former Polles beauty; Paul McAllister, Ian Keith and others playing in the supporting cast. The picture will be shown at the New Park on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Barbara Bronell as "Miss Ragtime," Queen of Syncopation, in her novel musical production, "My China Doll" coming to the New Park Theatre, tonight, Sept. 15th.

Twinkling Toes, Comedy, Song and Dance Make Up Show

The joy of a story told to living tunes does not die easily. The motion pictures, in spite of their great popularity, have not lessened in the least the demand for musical comedy. Everywhere people are reacting to the speaking and singing stage, and seemingly enjoying more than ever the twinkling toes, the funny comedians and the glitter and holiday atmosphere that is the American musical comedy.

One of the latest musical extravaganzas to be claimed a hit is the piece of Le Comte and Fleisher, known as "My China Doll," which will be presented at the New Park tonight.

Newport Home of Tennis

For many years the history of tennis in the United States was practically identical with the history of tennis at the Newport casino. It was there the first American court was built in 1875 and when, in 1881, the United States National Lawn Tennis association was organized in New York city, Newport was unanimously chosen as the logical place for holding the all-comers' championship each year.

Power From Volcanoes

In Italy and some of the volcanic islands of the Pacific the steam power issuing from volcanoes has been harnessed for engineering purposes. The people of the Tuscan town of Lardello light their streets, heat their homes and do their cooking by means of volcanic steam pressure, which generates enough heat to cook a joint in less than half an hour.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application of two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

In One Round!

"I ain't one that hides from trouble," said Bre'r Williams; "kase when his mind is made up to git you, git you he will—today, or tomorrow. But when I knows he's at the outside gate, I hollers, 'Come on in, an' when he comes, it's me an' him, an' I knocks de stuffins out o' him!'"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Romance of the Spanish Main CAPTAIN BLOOD By RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is wrongfully condemned as taking part in the ill-fated rebellion of Monmouth against King James. With Jeremy Pitt he is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave and is bought by Colonel Bishop at the behest of Arabella, his niece. A Spanish galleon commanded by Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez slips into port under false colors and captures Bridgetown. Peter Blood saves the life of Mary Trill and sends Arabella and Mary to safety back of the town. He then leads his fellow rebels-convict on board Don Diego's ship and they capture it while the Spaniards are feasting in the city. When Colonel Bishop, whose limited military defense had failed, realizes that the ship no longer threatens the town he goes aboard, where he is greeted by Peter Blood, now captain of the Spanish galleon, with Jeremy Pitt, Wolverstone and Hagthorpe as his aides. Wolverstone is for hanging Colonel Bishop to the yard arm, but Blood threatens to quit their leadership unless his orders are obeyed.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

He paused. There was no answer. But they stood hang-dog and half-mutinious before him, save Hagthorpe, who shrugged and smiled wearily. Mr. Blood resumed:

"Ye'll please to understand that aboard a ship there is one captain,

He lost his balance and tumbled into the sea.

So." He swung again to the startled Colonel. "Though I promise you your life, I must—as you've heard—keep you aboard as a hostage for the good behaviour of Governor Steed and what's left of the fort until we put to sea."

"But..."

"There is no more to be said, gentlemen. My name is Blood—Captain Blood, if you please, of this ship the Cinco Llagas, taken as a prize of war from Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez, who is my prisoner aboard."

The officers went, though not without some hustling, regardless of the howlings of Colonel Bishop, whose monstrous rage was fanned by terror at finding himself at the mercy of these men of whose cause to hate him he was very fully conscious. As they were running close to the headland east of the bay, Peter Blood returned to the Colonel who, under guard and panic-stricken, had dejectedly resumed his seat on the coamings of the main hatch.

"Can ye swim, Colonel? It's a mercy for you I'm not by nature as bloodthirsty as some of my friends here. And it's the devil's own labor I've had to prevail upon them not to be vindictive."

It was the thought of Arabella Bishop that had urged him to mercy, and had led him to oppose the natural vindictiveness of his fellow-slaves until he had been in danger of precipitating a mutiny. It was entirely to the fact that the Colonel was her uncle, although he did not even begin to suspect such a cause, that he owed such mercy as was now being shown him. Colonel Bishop mastered himself and rose. Peter Blood gave an order. A plank was run out over the gunwale, and lashed down.

"Just take a little walk, Colonel, darling," said a smooth, mocking voice behind him.

Still clinging, Colonel Bishop looked around in hesitation. He cursed them aloud venomously and incoherently, then loosed his hold and stepped out upon the plank. Three steps he took before he lost his balance and went tumbling into the green depths below.

When he came to the surface again, gasping for air, the Cinco Llagas was already some furlongs to leeward. But the roaring cheer of mocking valediction from the rebels-convict reached him across the water.

DON DIEGO

Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez awoke, and with languid eyes in aching head, he looked round the cabin, which was flooded with sunlight from the square windows astern. Between the pain in his head and the confusion in his mind, he found coherent thought impossible.

He was beginning to torture his mind with conjecture, when the door opened, and to Don Diego's increasing mystification he beheld his best suit of clothes step into the cabin. The suit paused to close the door, then advanced toward the couch on which Don Diego was extended, and inside the suit came a tall, slender gentleman of about Don Diego's own height and shape. Seeing the wide, startled eyes of the Spaniard upon him, the gentleman lengthened his stride.

"Awake, eh?" said he in Spanish. "Who the devil are you?" he asked. "And what the devil are you doing in my clothes and aboard my ship?"

"My name is Blood—Captain Peter Blood. This ship, like this handsome suit of clothes, is mine by right of conquest. Just as you, Don Diego, are my prisoner."

"And my son? What of my son?" he cried out. "He was in the boat that brought me aboard."

"Your son is safe; he and the boat's crew together with your gunner and his men are snug in irons under hatches."

Don Diego sank back on the couch, his glittering dark eyes fixed upon the tawny face above him. He accepted the situation with the fortitude of a fatalist. The light blue eyes played over him like points of steel.

"You are not afraid to die, Don Diego?"

"The question is offensive, sir."

"Would you be willing, sir, to earn life and liberty—for yourself, your son, and the other Spaniards who are on board?"

"To earn it, do you say? Why, if the service you would propose is one that cannot hurt my honor..."

"Could I be guilty of that?" protested the Captain. "I realize that even a pirate has his honor. The only man among us schooled in the art of navigation is fevered, delirious in fact, as a result of certain ill-treatment he received ashore before we carried him away with us. I can handle a ship in action, and there are one or two men aboard who can assist me; but of the higher mysteries of seamanship and of the art of finding a way over the trackless wastes of ocean, we know nothing. We desire to make for the Dutch settlement of Curacao as straightly as possible. Will you pledge me your honor, that you will navigate us thither? If so, we will release you and your surviving men upon arrival there."

Don Diego strode away in thought to the stern windows. "I accept," he said.

That Don Diego was not playing fair it was impossible to suspect. Moreover, there was no conceivable reason why he should not. "If this wind holds," he had told them at supper after he had announced to them their position, "we should reach Curacao inside three days."

For three days the wind held, and yet when the third night descended upon them they had still made no landfall. Captain Blood uneasily mentioned it to Don Diego.

"It will be for to-morrow morning," he was answered with calm conviction.

Captain Blood passed on, content, and went to visit Jerry Pitt, his patient to whose condition Don Diego owed his chance of life. It was this same Jerry Pitt who cast the first thought of suspicion. A trip on deck for a breath of fresh air and his navigator's interest in the night heavens moved him to point out the North Star and to lay the position of the ship to Captain Blood. But Don Diego's easy explanation satisfied his captor.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER AND ELIZABETH LLOYD

IT IS not generally known that the sunshine of love and romance had illuminated the life of John Greenleaf Whittier. This is an episode the details of which have been but newly discovered.

Elizabeth Lloyd was a brilliant Philadelphia Quaker, who was born in 1811. She was greatly gifted intellectually, and had quite a reputation as a writer of verse. Whittier met Miss Lloyd while he was in the Quaker City and each was attracted to the other. Before their friendship had advanced to the love stage, Miss Lloyd was married. After three years of happy life, Elizabeth's husband, Foot Howell, died and then the friendship with Whittier was resumed and the mutual attachment grew deeper. For what reason the romance did not culminate in marriage is not known and for want of a better reason must be attributed to difference of temperament.

"Amesbury, 18th, 5th mo., 1859.

"Dear Elizabeth,

"I liked thy letter (most welcome I assure thee) but feared that thy eyes might be suffering while I was enjoying it. Do not, dear E., feel obliged to answer my letters. Write when thou canst—one word or ten. The very blank paper which thy hand has folded for my sake will be dear to me. . . ."

"Elizabeth, I have been happy—far more so than I expected in this life. The sweet memory of the past few weeks makes me rich forever. What providence has in store for the future I know not—I dare not hope scarcely—but the past is mine—may I not say ours—sacred and beautiful, as joy forever. Asking nothing of thee, and with the tenderest regard for thy grief and memories, I have given that what was thine by right—the love of an honest heart—not as a restraint calling for no solicitude on thy part as respects myself. Nobody is a loser by loving or being loved. . . ."

"If It's Printing We Do It"

A Romance of the Spanish Main CAPTAIN BLOOD By RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is wrongfully condemned as taking part in the ill-fated rebellion of Monmouth against King James. With Jeremy Pitt he is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave and is bought by Colonel Bishop at the behest of Arabella, his niece. A Spanish galleon commanded by Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez slips into port under false colors and captures Bridgetown. Peter Blood saves the life of Mary Trill and sends Arabella and Mary to safety back of the town. He then leads his fellow rebels-convict on board Don Diego's ship and they capture it while the Spaniards are feasting in the city. When Colonel Bishop, whose limited military defense had failed, realizes that the ship no longer threatens the town he goes aboard, where he is greeted by Peter Blood, now captain of the Spanish galleon, with Jeremy Pitt, Wolverstone and Hagthorpe as his aides. Wolverstone is for hanging Colonel Bishop to the yard arm, but Blood threatens to quit their leadership unless his orders are obeyed.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

He paused. There was no answer. But they stood hang-dog and half-mutinious before him, save Hagthorpe, who shrugged and smiled wearily. Mr. Blood resumed:

"Ye'll please to understand that aboard a ship there is one captain,

He lost his balance and tumbled into the sea.

So." He swung again to the startled Colonel. "Though I promise you your life, I must—as you've heard—keep you aboard as a hostage for the good behaviour of Governor Steed and what's left of the fort until we put to sea."

"But..."

"There is no more to be said, gentlemen. My name is Blood—Captain Blood, if you please, of this ship the Cinco Llagas, taken as a prize of war from Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez, who is my prisoner aboard."

The officers went, though not without some hustling, regardless of the bellowings of Colonel Bishop, whose monstrous rage was fanned by terror at finding himself at the mercy of these men of whose cause to hate him he was very fully conscious. As they were running close to the headland east of the bay, Peter Blood returned to the Colonel who, under guard and panic-stricken, had dejectedly resumed his seat on the coamings of the main hatch.

"Can ye swim, Colonel? It's a mercy for you I'm not by nature as bloodthirsty as some of my friends here. And it's the devil's own labor I've had to prevail upon them not to be vindictive."

It was the thought of Arabella Bishop that had urged him to mercy, and had led him to oppose the natural vindictiveness of his fellow-slaves until he had been in danger of precipitating a mutiny. It was entirely to the fact that the Colonel was her uncle, although he did not even begin to suspect such a cause, that he owed such mercy as was now being shown him. Colonel Bishop mastered himself and rose. Peter Blood gave an order. A plank was run out over the gunwale, and lashed down.

"Just take a little walk, Colonel, darling," said a smooth, mocking voice behind him.

Still clinging, Colonel Bishop looked around in hesitation. He cursed them aloud venomously and incoherently, then loosed his hold and stepped out upon the plank. Three steps he took before he lost his balance and went tumbling into the green depths below.

When he came to the surface again, gasping for air, the Cinco Llagas was already some furlongs to leeward. But the roaring cheer of mocking valediction from the rebels-convict reached him across the water,

The Degree of Honor is noted for its high class entertainments, and lovers of the light fantastic should watch for further announcements.

Erickson-Olander

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Olander, Aitkin, was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Saturday afternoon September 13th, at 4:30 o'clock when their daughter, Miss Helen Olander, became the bride of Enari Erickson, of Brainerd, the Rev. William E. Harmon, Episcopal rector of Litchfield, officiating.

The color scheme carried throughout was pink and white, with masses of ferns and autumn flowers.

Miss Marion Wendell, a classmate of the bride, sang, "I Love You Truly," after which she played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Erickson, of Hibbing, sister of the groom, and Miss Vivian Olander of St. Paul, sister of the bride. The groom was attended by Adolph Hendrickson of Crosby, and Clarence Johnson of Aitkin. Little Hazel Johnson, of Aitkin, was flower girl, attractively dressed in pink silk and carried a pink basket of autumn flowers.

Miss Erickson was attired in a gown of pink georgette crepe over peach colored crepe de chene. Miss Olander's gown was of peach georgette crepe over pale green satin. Both carried bouquets of pink roses. Miss Wendell was dressed in a gown of white georgette crepe over apple green satin.

The bride's gown was of white satin-faced canton crepe, trimmed with pearls. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and baby breath. Her mother wore black satin, trimmed with silver lace.

A three-course dinner followed the ceremony. Assisting in the serving were the Misses Bernice and Hedvig Mattson and Esther Raymond.

The bride is one of Aitkin's popular young women. She is a graduate of the Aitkin high school and has been a very successful teacher in that county.

The groom is a prominent young man of Brainerd, holding a position with the Alderman-Maghan Company.

Out-of-town guests were C. E. Erickson, father of the groom, of Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson and son, of Brainerd, Julius Anderson, Mrs. Mary Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Whitlock and son, all of Brainerd, Mrs. Hilda Mattson, Crosby, Mrs. G. E. Smith, Ironton, Oscar Johnson and Bernard Nord, of Duluth, Mrs. Frank Johnson and son, Malmø and Miss Helen Kopp, of St. Paul.

Mr. Erickson and his bride motored to Duluth and the Mesaba range on their honeymoon. They will be at home after October 1st, at 1223 Quince street, Southeast Brainerd.

The newlyweds have a host of friends in both Aitkin and Brainerd, who extend congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple.

Eide-Shupe

Miss Elma Shupe and Louis Eide were married on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma Cunningham, Rev. E. A. Cooke officiating. Mrs. Frances Hyde acted as bridesmaid and Archie Sylvester as best man.

Thirty guests were present, both at the ceremony and the wedding dinner which followed. The home and the tables were beautifully decorated with pink and white roses. A wedding cake was prepared by one of the local bakeries.

The newlyweds will make their home in Brainerd, where the groom is employed in the Northern Pacific shops.

High Line, Carrying 35,000 Volts, Broke South of Brainerd Near Buffalo Creek

Brainerd was left in darkness again on Friday evening, the lights failing two or three times early in the evening and then going out altogether about 9:20 o'clock.

The reason given for this failure to supply light was that the high line, carrying 35,000 volts, broke south of Brainerd, near Buffalo creek bridge. Service on the Cuyuna range was at a standstill, as it was in Brainerd, for this high line furnishes electric current to the range towns, too.

Motion picture audiences sat in darkness for nearly half an hour, and at last the managers were forced to issue rain checks and dismiss their crowds. W. R. Hiller, of the Lyceum theatre, in notifying his audience that no lights would be available for completing the show, made a plea for business men and other citizens to demand better service, of the kind given by the former owners of the light plant.

POWER, LIGHT CO. NEW AMENDMENT

Purpose is to Change Location of Sub-Station and City Switches to One Near Pumping Station

NEW SYSTEM IS PLANNED

Both Leads, From Sylvan Dam and Main Line, Will be Brought to One Point

The purpose of the amendment offered by the Minnesota Power & Light Co., at tonight's meeting of the city council, is to change the location of the sub-station and city switches to a sub-station located on the pumping station site where the city employees, on duty 24 hours of the day, will have access to the switches and meters.

It is a part of a new system planned by the corporation whereby all the leads, both from the Sylvan dam and the main line east of Brainerd will be brought to one point. It is favored by the water and light board as it will give Brainerd power from two sources, thus probably bridging over any power interruptions possible under the old plan. This procedure was recommended by the water and light board some 12 months ago, although at that time, under the Cuyuna Range Power company contract, the Northwest Paper Company was used as an auxiliary.

Now, with the paper company disconnected as an auxiliary, the new plan is absolutely necessary to provide against any power interruptions. The amendment provides specifically that the old contract shall remain in full force and effect, with the exception of the above changes, if so adopted.

SHOT LOON, FINED $10

Minneapolis Youth Before Nisswa Court for Infraction of Game Laws

F. Roberts, Jr., of Minneapolis, age 19, shot and killed a loon with a 22 Marlin rifle, and was apprehended by Deputy Game Wardens A. P. Cardie and Paul Farrel, taken before Justice of the Peace, Mrs. J. A. Swanson, Nisswa, who heard the case. Young Roberts was fined $10 and $4 costs and the gun was confiscated.

Loons are tough, inedible birds, and furthermore, are protected by the federal and state laws. They are classed as songbirds, even though they are poor singers, emitting shrieks carrying miles.
Young Roberts carried on a fusillade, on the lake, and nearby fishermen rowed to shore in haste to dodge the bullets, said Mr. Cardie.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY CELEBRATED DEC. 7

Jerusalem, Sept. 6.—The most cosmopolitan gathering in the history of this city took place this week in the garden of the American consulate, when the representatives of nineteen nations and seventeen religious communities met to organize for the celebration here of "Golden Rule Sunday" on behalf of the orphans and refugees of the Near East.

The observance will take place here, as in all civilized nations, on December 7. Leadership in the movement will be taken here by Musia Kazim Pasha, head of the Moslem Community, and his chief lieutenants will include representatives of the Jews, Copts, and various Christian churches. The amicable union of all creeds under the banner of the Golden Rule is regarded here as significant of a new tolerance which has never before been experienced in this birthplace and home of the great contending religions.

Straight Line Coats With Side Trimming And With Pretty Furs Are Fashion Favorites This Season

Isn't Dame Fashion accommodating? Just when we tire of one style she produces another even prettier than the one we have loved.

Her style for this season's coats is most pleasing. The cloths are luxurious, the belts are gone, the trimmings are mostly on the sides with the exception of pretty furs which are even more prettily arranged than they have been. They make a "distinctive" looking coat and those who have seen them are delighted. We believe you will be too. Let us show you—we shall count it a great pleasure to do so.

The Degree of Honor is noted for its high class entertainments, and lovers of the light fantastic should watch for further announcements.

Erickson-Olander

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Olander, Aitkin, was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Saturday afternoon September 13th, at 4:30 o'clock when their daughter, Miss Helen Olander, became the bride of Enari Erickson, of Brainerd, the Rev. William E. Harmon, Episcopal rector of Litchfield, officiating.

The color scheme carried throughout was pink and white, with masses of ferns and autumn flowers.

Miss Marion Wendell, a classmate of the bride, sang, "I Love You Truly," after which she played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Erickson, of Hibbing, sister of the groom, and Miss Vivian Olander of St. Paul, sister of the bride. The groom was attended by Adolph Hendrickson of Crosby, and Clarence Johnson of Aitkin. Little Hazel Johnson, of Aitkin, was flower girl, attractively dressed in pink silk and carried a pink basket of autumn flowers.

Miss Erickson was attired in a gown of pink georgette crepe over peach colored crepe de chene. Miss Olander's gown was of peach georgette crepe over pale green satin. Both carried bouquets of pink roses. Miss Wendell was dressed in a gown of white georgette crepe over apple green satin.

The bride's gown was of white satin-faced canton crepe, trimmed with pearls. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and baby breath. Her mother wore black satin, trimmed with silver lace.

A three-course dinner followed the ceremony. Assisting in the serving were the Misses Bernice and Hedvig Mattson and Esther Raymond.

The bride is one of Aitkin's popular young women. She is a graduate of the Aitkin high school and has been a very successful teacher in that county.

The groom is a prominent young man of Brainerd, holding a position with the Alderman-Maghan Company.

Out-of-town guests were C. B. Erickson, father of the groom, of Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson and son, of Brainerd, Julius Anderson, Mrs. Mary Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Whitlock and son, all of Brainerd, Mrs. Hilda Mattson, Crosby, Mrs. G. E. Smith, Ironton, Oscar Johnson and Bernard Nord, of Duluth, Mrs. Frank Johnson and son, Malmö and Miss Helen Kopp, of St. Paul.

Mr. Erickson and his bride motored to Duluth and the Mesaba range on their honeymoon. They will be at home after October 1st, at 1223 Quince street, Southeast Brainerd.

The newlyweds have a host of friends in both Aitkin and Brainerd, who extend congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple.

Eide-Shupe

Miss Elma Shupe and Louis Eide were married on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma Cunningham, Rev. E. A. Cooke officiating. Mrs. Frances Hyde acted as bridesmaid and Archie Sylvester as best man.

Thirty guests were present, both at the ceremony and the wedding dinner which followed. The home and the tables were beautifully decorated with pink and white roses. A wedding cake was prepared by one of the local bakeries.

The newlyweds will make their home in Brainerd, where the groom is employed in the Northern Pacific shops.

BRAINERD DARK FRIDAY EVENING

Lights on And Off After 6 P. M. and Then Off Altogether at 9:20 P. M.

MOVIES INCONVENIENCED

High Line, Carrying 35,000 Volts, Broke South of Brainerd Near Buffalo Creek

Brainerd was left in darkness again on Friday evening, the lights failing two or three times early in the evening and then going out altogether about 9:20 o'clock.

The reason given for this failure to supply light was that the high line, carrying 35,000 volts, broke south of Brainerd, near Buffalo creek bridge. Service on the Cuyuna range was at a standstill, as it was in Brainerd, for this high line furnishes electric current to the range towns, too.

Motion picture audiences sat in darkness for nearly half an hour, and at last the managers were forced to issue rain checks and dismiss their crowds. W. R. Hiller, of the Lyceum theatre, in notifying his audience that no lights would be available for completing the show, made a plea for business men and other citizens to demand better service, of the kind given by the former owners of the light plant.

ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL HORSE RACES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Sept. 15.—International horse races, which will bring together the champion of Europe and the best thoroughbred in the United States probably will ensue as permanent annual fixtures as an outcome of the three big international races arranged this season.

Considering that international competition has become so thoroughly and so satisfactorily established in athletics, tennis, golf, polo, yachting and other minor sports it is rather unusual that so much difficulty should have been encountered in fostering and promoting international relations in horse racing, one of the oldest and perhaps the most popular of world sports.

As a rule, most of the best thoroughbreds in Europe are bred, owned and raced in England and, in the majority of cases, the best horses belong to the stables of titled horsemen who respect tradition more than they care for establishing new customs.

In horseracing alone, England retains the old prestige of the empire, and it is being carefully guarded. The watchdogs of the national honor do not want their thoroughbred class to descend to the rating of their pugilists, their athletes and their tennis players and there is only one way to do it—keep them away from anything that can beat them.

After great difficulty, the first international race was arranged last year, and Papyrus, the winner of the Epsom Derby, made the trip across the Atlantic to get a terrific beating from Zev, the champion money winner of America, in the mud, at Belmont Park.

The race never could have been arranged if Papyrus had not been owned by Ben Irish, a commoner, with more sporting instinct than the owners of the big ranking stables. Irish took a chance with his thoroughbred, and for taking it he was considered as almost a national traitor. When Papyrus lost and was shown up so badly, he was looked upon as something even worse.

CLOQUET INDIAN IS LOG ROLLING CHAMP OF WORLD

6,000 PEOPLE WATCH JOE MAD-WA-OSH'S ANTICS ON SLIP-PERY LOGS

GIVES AN INDIAN WAR DANCE
ON LOG WHEN COMPETI-TION WAS OVER

(By United Press)
Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 15.—Joe Mad-Wa-Osh, Cloquet, Minn., Indian, is today world's log rolling champion as the result of the world's champion log rolling tournament held here yesterday afternoon.

More than 6,000 persons stood or sat on the sloping banks of the Half Moon Lake here and watched the pick of the world's log rollers compete in the tournament during the long afternoon.

It was not until 6 o'clock that Mad-Wa-Osh, in the final round of competition, spilled his opponent, William Bauregard, redskin, for the final fall of the day.

Holding his precarious position atop the spinning log, Mad-Wa-Osh waved his brown arms high in the air, uttering ringing whoops of victory, and gave an exhibition of an Indian war dance on the whirling log.

Log rolling is a dying sport, popular in logging days when the woods and rivers were full of men who travelled for days down the rivers on rough logs just as they come from the lumberman's axe. It has been ten years since a world's championship log-rolling tournament has been held.

Rough Afternoon for Umpire Tim Hurst

The late Tim Hurst had had a rough afternoon. The crowd charged on the field after the game and one husky rowdy planted a straight right on Tim's favorite eye, closing that member to the outside world.

"It's a tough life," a friend remarked to Tim at his hotel. "You have to stand for a lot of abuse, fight off players and fans and keep out of sight most of the time. An umpire's existence is h-l on earth, etc., etc."

"Yes, but just think o' him grand hours," replied Tim, blinking with his one good lamp.

ANOTHER WALLOP GIVEN LOUISVILLE

CATCHER VICK SUSTAINS BROKEN
JAW WHEN HIT BY A
PITCHED BALL

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 15.—On the short end of the count going into the ninth inning the Colonels staged a three-run rally and turned apparent defeat into a 7 to 6 victory with Indianapolis.

Leading by two runs Jess Petty, leading Association twirler, took the mound for the Indians and was charged with the defeat.

Ernie Vick, Louisville catcher, suffered a broken jaw in the ninth inning when struck by one of Geo. Smith's pitched balls. This leaves the Colonels without a backstop, as two other catchers, Meyers and Brotem, are on the hospital list.

Bob Edelman and Claude Willoughby, recruit twirlers, sent to the mound by Manager Harry Clark of the Brewers against the Kaws yesterday, came through in great style, the Brewers winning both games of a double-header, the first 4 to 3 and the second 4 to 2.

WILLS AIMS TO FIGHT DEMPSEY NEXT

New York, Sept. 15.—Chances of Tommy Gibbons getting a bout in the immediate future with Harry Wills are remote.

Manager Paddy Mullins declares that he has gone everything that the public and promoters have asked in order to demonstrate that Wills was entitled to a match with Dempsey, and he does not intend to battle any more elimination affairs.

Wills may take on some setup fights during the winter.

There is, however, a good chance that Tommy Gibbons may battle Gene Tunney here next month, or Tommy may get a bout with Firpo or with Jack Renault.

All three of these bouts are being chattered about.

Tex Rickard would like to stage one more outdoor show and is sort of feeling around to ascertain how the St. Paul light heavyweight would lineup with the American light heavyweight champion at an afternoon show or possibly an evening show around world series time.

Dempsey will hardly fight this fall or winter, so unless something comes between it may be that Harry Wills and Jack Dempsey will battle around July 4, 1925.

Wills' win is a very popular one here. The colored boxer is well liked, he is a thorough gentleman, says but little and is nicely handled by Paddy Mullins, who has a host of friends through the admirable manner in which he piloted Mike O'Dowd to the world's middleweight title.

Wills was as tickled over his win as a youngster would be with a new present. He declared that if Firpo had only fought as he did against Dempsey, thus leaving some openings that he would have scored a knockout.

Firpo seemed to be merely trying to stick with Wills and clinched throughout the fight. Firpo was given a much worse beating than most of the fans realized as Wills hammered him thoroughly at every clinch until he was stopped from so doing by the referee, who seemingly was swayed by the crowd which wanted more long distance fighting, but at which style Firpo was helpless.

The attendance and the receipts were away below what the over-enthusiastic scribes had figured.

According to the official count, there were 48,000 cash customers and the receipts around $475,000. Firpo receives $159,000, which is 37½ per cent, while Wills gets $150,000 flat. The total expense is figured to be close to $100,000, leaving the promoters around $75,000.
